Live shark falls from the sky at Californian golf course!

Golf club employees in southern California came to the rescue when a shark dropped out of the sky and flopped around on the 12th tee.

A course marshal at the San Juan Hills Golf Club found the leopard shark on Monday afternoon and brought it to the clubhouse, according to Melissa McCormack, the operations director at the course.

It had puncture wounds where it appeared a bird had snagged it from the Pacific Ocean, about five miles away.

The marshal put the creature, which was bleeding but still alive, into his golf buggy and sped off back to the clubhouse.

They stuck the two-foot-long shark into fresh water before somebody remembered it came from the sea, so they got some sea salt from the kitchen and mixed it in.

Another employee rushed the shark to the ocean where McCormack says it was very still for a few seconds before twisting around and speeding off.

Nobody was injured when the shark fell from the sky, although some golfers had just left the area.

"We have your typical coyotes, skunks and the occasional mountain lion, but nothing like a shark," Ms McCormack told The Associated Press.
